From the Dean

Next week is Leap Week!

But "Look before you leap."

Printer's Note—Dean should say more than this or we will never fill the second page.

Season's Greetings

In the spirit of the season we present this paper for the entertainment and enlightenment of the student body and the numerous readers throughout the world; yes, even you in Thailand, South Africa, and Costa Rica.

We promise faithfully that the news stories contained herein are accurate in so far as we can make them once you can get the various portions pieced together into an intelligible sequence. Some other things to be found here are not to be taken so literally. Some of the "Quotable Quotes" are authentic, while there are others for which we cannot vouch and therefore we decline to be responsible for them.

No System of Cuts

Some students have the idea that we have a system of cuts in this college. This is not the case. Absences from class should be settled to the satisfaction of the instructor in charge of the class.

J. W. Jones
Dean of Faculty

There will be a "Y" cabinet meeting in the "Y" hut in College Park at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon March 30.

Notice has been received that the Broadway musical, "Hellzapoppin'" will be in Kansas City on April 20, 21, 22, 23, and 24. The prices range from $3.36 to $1.12 for the evening performances, and from $2.24 to .85 for the Wednesday matinee. Tickets will be on sale to members of the Playgoer's League from March 24 to 30.

If you wish to secure a ticket, further information and Playgoer's League cards may be secured in the office of the Director of Personnel for Women.

Women Graduates Are Active in A. A. U. W.

Women graduates of the College are active in the newly organized branch of the American Association of University Women in Daviess County. Its president, while not a graduate of the College, but of the University of Missouri, is Mrs. Sam Evans, the wife of Sam Evans who is a graduate of the College, a member of the class of 1925.

Myrtle Ruth Gray Hammond, who took the B. S. degree from the College in 1925, is vice-president of the county branch. Mrs. Rhoda K. Doolin, who took both the B. S. and the A. B. degrees from the College in 1923, is Fellowship chairman.

Other graduates of the College who are members of the branch are Miss Marian VanVickle, of the class of 1936; Miss Frances Dougherty, 1938; Miss Ruth Ramsbottom, who took both degrees in 1926; Miss Irene Bohlenblust, B. S. 1940; and Mrs. Erma Davis Conaway, B. S. 1937.

The Daviess County branch is made up of people from Gallatin, Pattonburg, Jamesport, and Coffey.

Dear Diary,

The only nice thing about having a cold is that you don't have to go to classes. I've been in bed all day with a stuffed up head and a clear conscience, while Alice had to do her sleeping slumped down behind the biggest boy she could find in the class. Frankly, I would gladly sit through four classes in a row to be able to draw one good breath. It aches and my throat burns, and everything more than two feet away I see double. They've poured enough nose drops and orange juice down me to float the Queen Mary and several convoys, but I still feel like something that got left alive by mistake. Everybody cringes a little when he first sees me, for with my nose rosy—to make a violent understatement—my eyes red rimmed and blurred, and my hair, without benefit of curlers, straggling stringily about my shoulders, I strongly resemble Death taking a holiday. Alice swears by aspirin as the Only Thing to get rid of a cold, and if I take many more tablets they'll be sending me to an institution for dope fiends. There are three of the things stuck in my throat now. It wouldn't be so bad if everybody didn't have a sure fire kill or cure remedy. Nobody seems to be very particular which it does, and I've tried crack brain ideas till I feel like a government experimental station. I'm going to keep on trying them, too. After all, having a cold and missing class is one thing, but I've got to be on my feet for that dance tomorrow night!

Berkeley's Cyclotron Is Nearly Completed

BERKELEY, CALIF. — (ACP) — Nearly half the steel for the world's largest cyclotron, the University of California's 4,900-ton atom-smasher, has been put into place.

A total of 3,700 tons of steel, as much as is used in one of Uncle Sam's cruisers, will go into the magnet alone. The base and half of the vertical columns of the magnet have been completed.

When the magnet is finished in April, work will begin on a building to house the cyclotron, with the machine expected to be in operation by the fall of 1942.

The new cyclotron will dwarf the 225-ton atom-smasher on California's Berkeley campus, now the largest in the world. Professor E. O. Lawrence, inventor of the cyclotron, expects the new machine to open up new worlds to science.

The 4,900-ton cyclotron will be at least five times as powerful as the 225-ton machine. It will bombard atoms with a beam of atomic particles traveling at 60,000 miles a second, which corresponds to 100,000,000 electron volts of energy.

Fordham Seismograph Records All Tremors

New York City—(ACP)—Seismographs in Fordham university's laboratory can record any disturbance of the earth's surface, whether it be the Maypole dancing of children a quarter of a mile away or a major earthquake in India.

According to the Rev. Joseph Lynch, "the machines even record the daily passage of the milk train."

Emphasizing that earthquakes cannot be predicted, Father Lynch says the most recent discovery is that they do not always occur at the earth's surface. "The most serious type along the Japanese coast, may

The Stroller...

The Stroller has learned that Rip Clairy is an excellent student in navigation. Evidently Maryville is not a big enough spot on the landscape.

"I, too, as a student, find it difficult to find a spot on the landscape that is not a big enough spot on the landscape. I, too, as a student, find it difficult to find a spot on the landscape that is not a big enough spot on the landscape. I, too, as a student, find it difficult to find a spot on the landscape that is not a big enough spot on the landscape."

The Stroller got the biggest April fool package of the season this week. He went to his mail-box, and what do you think he found? Yes, what did he? Look at the extent of his jokes and you can guess. Now that he has been so horribly April fooled, what is he going to do to fill up his column?

Ah! He has it! But some fraternity may object to the publicity. But he has said he will not be intimidated—and any way, he does not know which fraternity it was that started it.

Suddenly somebody said, "Jenny Wren is here early this spring!" Not having heard the familiar chatter of the garrulous little bird, the Stroller started out looking for wren tracks. He had no trouble finding them. There they were from the front door of the Administration Building down the Long Walk.

And such foot-prints as Jenny had! Great big masculine foot-prints, end to end, neatly chalked about. Down the walk went Jenny, becoming weary and foot-sore. "Blister," Jenny chattered up at a particularly rough spot on the walk. "No, she can wait," was neatly scrawled as Jenny turned in toward Residence Hall and then though better of it and retraced steps. "Half-sole needed," got written where the track landed squarely in a hole so that only half of it could be seen.

"Who is Jenny?"

Why, Jenny is (April Fool! The Stroller doesn't know (of course that is a lie), and here is one way to get out of telling. As the short story in to-day's issue says, "Where there's a won't there's a way.") occur 500 miles below the earth's surface and the fracture will never be visible," he points out.

Dutch father and son
Philadelphia—(ACP)—A father and son, refugees from Holland, are college chums at the University of Pennsylvania.

The father, Dr. Herbert Loeb, was a dentist in his native land for 20 years before fleeing because of the Nazi invasion. He must complete two years' instruction at a recognized university before he can practice here.

The son, Arthur, 17, is a student in the scientific school to become a chemical engineer.

Love at First Sight Is Myth, Panel Decides

DENTON, TEXAS—(ACP)—Love at first sight is just about a myth, a panel of six faculty members at North Texas State Teachers college has decided.

The six—four successfully married, the unmarried director of the college nursery school and a home economics instructor—led a discussion of "love, courtship and marriage" at a meeting of the college Psychology club.

The panel agreed that young people should choose their mates with their intelligence and not with their emotions, and added that it is a juvenile mistake for one to think there can be only one love affair in his life.

They set the best marital ages at 22 to 26 for women and 25 to 33 for men.

And they concluded with the advice that, if necessary, parents should subsidize their children's marriages for a while to enable the young folks to live in a home of their own.

Midget Chemistry Is Fun
Ames, Iowa—(ACP)—"Midget chemistry" is providing fun, as well as education, for Iowa State college freshmen. Test tubes are about the size of little fingers and liquids are measured with eye droppers.

Besides proving an entertaining novelty for students, midget chemistry, is said to be safer and more healthful as well as more economical.

Where There's a Won't, There's a Way!

Johnny Forester stopped at the fountain in the second floor hall to get a drink. A girl wandering down the hall stumbled and nearly fell because she had been admiring him instead of watching where she was going.

That was because Johnny was attractive. He knew it, and ordinarily he was rather pleased with the situation, but at this time it was a decided source of annoyance. He was being pursued disgustingly by all sorts of predatory feminine creatures.

Fantastic as it seems, there was a complete reversal of the order of the social amenities. The girls had taken up all the privileges, customs, and mannerisms of the boys. The boys, for the most part, were just sitting back in a state of confusion. This morning Johnny had seen a girl adorned with necktie, suspenders, and watch chain. She had stopped a boy who was going past and asked him for a date. The charming thing about the boy was that he wore a lovely big blue hair ribbon.

According to the bulletin board announcements, posters, etc., it all came under one great important caption—Leap Week.

"Leap Week!" Johnny muttered. "I'd like to catch the idiot who thought that one up! I'd fill his ears with some sweet little nothings that he wouldn't want to hand in on an English paper." For Johnny was in that disconcerting state of affairs known as a predicament.

Barbara, his favorite girl, had expected to escort him to the dance that evening, but she hadn't mentioned it until that very morning. She had just taken it for granted that he would go, and he foolishly had supposed she was asking someone else.

A little spark of jealousy had been ignited within him, and saying to himself, "I'll show her where she stands," he had accepted the invitation proffered by a shy little freshman named Marilyn who was quite as pretty as Barbara. Marilyn had obviously been thrilled with his acceptance for, in a voice soft with happiness, she had whispered, "Oh! This will be a glorious evening. The loveliest dress I have ever possessed, new silver sandals that are just yearning to get into step, and last and best, a boy I've always hoped I might go with sometime."

He hadn't had a chance to explain to Barbara. He didn't know what to do. He sat there on a bench and tried to think, but only succeeded in worrying. He dreaded the thought of losing Barbara by making her angry or hurting her feelings. Balancing that fear was the unpleasantness of spilling little Marilyn's "perfect evening" for her.

Johnny just couldn't find the answer, no matter how he searched his brain. The futile notion occurred to him that if he had been twins he could go with Barbara himself and send his twin brother with Marilyn. What a remarkably pleasing solution! But that idea was developed about twenty years too late.

He glanced at his watch. Three o'clock! He dashed up to third floor and got there just in time for his Social Science class. Johnny was in the back row. Seated right beside him was the blond daughter of the new football coach. Her name was Jennie and she had long droopy page-boy hair that swished back and forth when she moved her head.

"Probably thinks that stuff looks glamorous," Johnny decided. "She'll be nice enough when she gets next to herself, but she hasn't got past the imitation movie star stage yet."

The girl turned her "come-hither look" on, full force, and leaned toward him. "You're one of the football players, aren't you?"

Johnny opened his notebook and nodded affirmatively.

"You have a pretty good chance of being quarter back on the first team next fall?"

"I suppose so."

"Daddy usually selects his line-up to start the fall season from the men whose work he likes during the spring practice."

Johnny's interest quickened. "I really would like to play that position."

She smiled. "I'll put in a good word for you with my father."

"Thanks."

Then she really came to the point and revealed her purpose in starting the conversation. "Would you like to go to the dance with me tonight?"

"Oh no, I can't. I'm sorry, but you see I already have plans."

Disbelief and disappointment appeared on her countenance, for she was used to having her own way.

"Yes, I think I shall mention you to my father," she said maliciously. His mind said, "There go my chances of getting on the football team."

Jennie said, "If you should decide to change your mind, call me before five o'clock. My telephone number is 555."

Time flew. As five o'clock neared, he was again sitting on a bench in the second floor hall. He still couldn't think of a way out. He couldn't bear to think of losing Barbara. He'd be ashamed forever if he gave Marilyn a let-down. Yet, he'd been working two years to get on the football team. His state of tension became worse and worse. He kept opening and closing his hands nervously and started staring wildly about him as if he expected to find the answer staring at him from one of the walls.

Zin-nag! Zin-nag!

Startled momentarily by the sound of discordant chimes, he looked up at the clock. It was ringing five. Flash! The ideal solution occurred to him just like that. Everything fitted in perfectly—the sound of the clock ringing five, the fact that Jennie's phone number was 555, that Marilyn's slippers were silver, and his knowledge that Barbara happened to be extraordinarily fond of apple pie.

Delighted with his brainstorm, he hurried to the phone booth and called 304.

POETRY READING

Tuesday afternoon, April 1 (This is no April fooling), there will be a meeting in Recreation Hall from 4:00 until 4:30 of those who are interested in reading poetry. This is not a club meeting, but a meeting for anybody who loves to read or to hear poetry. Bring with you your favorite poem and read it to the group—or just come and listen to others read.

Title of All-College Revue Is Announced

"Take It From Me" is the title of the All-College Revue which will be presented at the College in the latter part of May, according to an announcement from Robert L. Main, College director of dramas. Mr. Main also states that the tentative date for the production has been set for May 21.

Last week it was announced that the leads in the Revue, a three-act musical comedy, are Dorothy White and Marvin Gench, who will play the parts of rival campus leaders in the Revue, which is based on the rivalry of these personalities for campus leadership. A part of the supporting cast was also announced at that time.

This week, the remainder of the cast, with the exception of two roles which will shortly be filled, was selected, following tryouts which were held recently. Donald Moyer, Dick Moyer, Ted Young, and Warren Durrett, all members of the College dance orchestra, will take supporting roles as members of the dance orchestra which figures prominently in the story of "Take It From Me."

Frank Baker will play the part of a popular football player with a roving eye for beauty, and Elmer Hawk, the role of a brash and self-assured freshman fraternity pledge. Other supporting roles will be played by Emma Ruth Kendall, Margery Drifflinger, Pauline Coats, and Dorothy Weems. Jesse Lundy will also take one of the supporting roles.

Other minor roles which involve little or no speaking will be filled by students yet to be selected. A dance group has been assembled by Miss Weems. This group will also double as a singing chorus, with a few possible additions from the student body at large.

W. A. A. Elects Officers; Plans Spring Play Day

At their last meeting the Women's Athletic Association elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Colleen Hentt; vice-president, Charlotte Moyer; secretary-treasurer, Emma Isabell Brown; reporter, Marjorie Hoerman; and historian, Betty Duncan.

The organization has an intramural manager whose function is to coordinate all the sports activities. Vida Bernau was appointed to this office.

Plans are now under way for the annual play day which will be held Saturday, May 19. Each Spring the W. A. A. invites girls from various high schools of Northwest Missouri to come to the College and spend the day participating in various sports activities with the emphasis on "play with us for fun." Last year the play-day was a big success and it is planned to bring even more girls to the Campus with this year's play-day.

YOU TASTE ITS QUALITY

A good way to get the most out of anything is to pause now and then and refresh yourself...with ice-cold Coca-Cola. Its taste is delicious. Its after-sense of refreshment is delightful. A short pause for ice-cold Coca-Cola is the refreshing thing to do. So when you pause throughout the day, make it the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coca-Cola.

A psychologist, while visiting a kindergarten class, sought to test the kiddies on the keenness of their powers of observation. With the teacher's permission she began asking a series of questions.

"How many ears has a cat?"

"Two!" the youngsters shouted.

"How many eyes has a cat?"

"Two!" was the unanimous answer.

"How many feet has a cat?"

"Four!" the kiddies chorused.

By this time little Betty was getting tired of what her more sophisticated mind regarded as useless questioning, so when the visitor next asked, "How many tails has a cat?" she piped up:

"Dood heavens! Ain't you never seed a tat?"

"He merely offered to pay my funeral expenses."

Way up in a mountain district a census taker came across a strange thing. One large family seemed to from the wild-eyed woman whose children were hanging about her skirts. So imagine his surprise to find that one son was at Harvard. He asked "And what is he studying at Harvard?" Proudly the mother replied, "He ain't studin' nuthin. They're studin' him."

At Camp Jackson

A selective service man, his first day in uniform, was walking down a company street, when he encountered an officer. Feeling he should prove he was an old soldier, the recruit smartly raised his hand in a salute.

The officer stopped the man and asked, "Were you in the Boy Scouts?"

The recruit answered, "Yes sir, but how did you know?"

"Well," the officer replied, "We salute differently in the army."

Professor Gilbert Lueninghoener of Midland college is directing construction of a Ritchey-Field type reflecting telescope, designed especially for study of the Milky Way.

A staff statistician reports in the Whitworth college. Whistle that "there are only three clean saddle oxen on the campus and two approximately clean."
